8. Main Content

As a consequence of the fact that Regulation (EC) No. 853/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of 29 April 2004, laying down specific hygiene standards for food of animal origin, allows Member States to maintain certain practices in abattoirs considered to be special in the Community framework, conditions are laid down in this provision in which partially eviscerated lines of birds, lagomorphs, lamb, goatlings and piglets can be placed on the market. Likewise, the Draft regulates the conditions under which foodstuffs can be marketed between trading operations and retailers, including products of animal origin, which is allowed under Article 1 of Regulation 853/2004.

As a consequence of the fact that Regulation (EC) No. 854/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of 29 April 2004, laying down specific hygiene standards for the organisation of official controls on products of animal origin destined for human consumption, allows the competent authority to authorise other conditions under which raw milk that does not meet Community requirements on somatic cells and the content of germs at 30°C can be marketed, is set out in this draft.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The purpose of this legislation is to:

- Maintain certain practices in abattoirs considered to be special in the Community framework, guaranteeing the objectives of food safety in the regulations.
- Adapt the range of distribution of food products between trading operations and retailers, in accordance with the nature and size of the companies.
- Allow other systems for the processing of raw milk that are equal in guarantees of safety to processing cheese with a period of maturity greater than 60 days.
