5. Title

Order on health rules applicable to products of animal origin and to foodstuffs containing these

6. Products Concerned

Products of animal origin and foodstuffs containing these, as well as the establishments handling, producing or processing them. The operators concerned are those covered by Regulation (EC) No 853/2004

7. Notification Under Another Act

8. Main Content

The Order lays down additional health rules to the abovementioned Regulations.

Amongst these provisions the following can be noted:

- Specific provisions applicable to slaughterhouses for domestic ungulates and ungulate farmed game and cutting premises for meats from these animals
- Provisions applicable to slaughterhouses and cutting premises for poultry, lagomorphs, ratites and small farmed game
- Specific provisions applicable to the collection, processing and marketing of fresh wild game meat
- Provisions applicable to raw milk and milk products
- Provisions applicable to the direct supply from the producer to the end consumer, or to a retail establishment directly supplying the end consumer, of small quantities of primary products: fishery products and eggs from the species Gallus gallus

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The abovementioned regulations are directly applicable.

It is therefore appropriate to rework the national Orders in order to delete any superfluous information and inconsistencies with Hygiene regulations.

These regulations stipulate that national provisions must be adopted either for activities outside the framework of the regulations, or within the framework of derogation laid down by the regulations.

It furthermore appears necessary to clarify certain points of the regulations in particular to provide administrative details on the competent authority.

The publication of this text will result in all of the national texts laid down on the basis of the old sectoral directives being repealed.
