8. Main Content

Identification marks for pigs must be approved in the same manner as identification marks for sheep, goats, cattle and horses. For the latter species, the requirement for approval of marks by the competent authority is provided for in EU regulations. Approval is granted after a series of laboratory tests to ensure that the mark is retained on the animal, and that it is legible and harmless.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The presence on the market of marks that have not been approved by the competent authority does not guarantee that animals can be identified over long periods of time and, consequently, their traceability cannot be ensured over time.
