Order of ... amending the Order of 23 November 1987 on the safety of vessels

6. Products Concerned

T20T : Sea, river and inland waterway transport

V10T : Radio interface

7. Notification Under Another Act

8. Main Content

The above-mentioned order lays down the regulatory requirements applicable to the on-shore maintenance of satellite emergency position-indicating radio beacons installed on seafaring vessels, and defines the approval methods and conditions for service providers responsible for carrying out that maintenance.

These requirements are based in particular on the directives drawn up by the International Maritime Organisation (Circular MSC/Circ.1039 of the Maritime Safety Committee).

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The proposed text makes the need for shore-based maintenance of satellite emergency position-indicating radio beacons obligatory at intervals of no more than 5 (five) years.

The proposed text does not just conform to the requirements of the Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS), in particular its amendments incorporated by means of Resolution MSC.152(78), which entered into force on 1 July 2006, but also extends the requirement to vessels not subject to the SOLAS Convention equipped with satellite EPIRBs.

Furthermore, the text presented is not governed by Community provisions, and the existing international provisions on the practical methods for this on-shore maintenance (cf. Circular MSC/Circ.1039 mentioned in paragraph 8 above) are not of an obligatory nature.
