8. Main Content

The draft Royal Decree lays down certain analytical parameters of authenticity and quality as well as the official methods of analysis to assess the composition, in order to ensure commercial quality control and to prevent fraud to the consumer and unfair competition.

The scope of the draft Royal Decree is orange juice, apricot juice/purée, mandarin juice, apple juice/purée, peach juice/purée, pear juice/purée and pineapple juice.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The current national standard (Royal Decree No 1050 of 1 August 2003) includes the legislation of Council Directive 2001/112/EC of 20 December 2001, without laying down the analytical parameters that facilitate the quality control of fruit juices and other similar products intended for human consumption.

In view of the advances produced by the analytical methodology it seems appropriate that in addition to the official methods of analysis included in the Order of 29 of 1988, the methods laid down in the draft Royal Decree should also apply.
