8. Main Content

The Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions prescribe the traffic signs (which for the purposes of this legislation include traffic signals and road markings) for use on public highways in Great Britain. The draft amendments make changes to the current revision (the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 2002) that will:

- a. Permit certain new traffic signs, signals and road markings to be used by local highway authorities;
- b. Permit the placing of portable pedestrian crossing facilities;
- c. Update references to British and European standards;
- d. Correct errors identified in the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 2002.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

A review is currently underway of UK traffic signing policy, with a view to producing a comprehensive revision of the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 2002 in due course. However, in the interim, changes were identified that it was felt necessary to take forward in advance of the main revision. These amendments to TSRGD address these specific issues in advance of the changes resulting from the Review.
