8. Main Content

The variety of existing structures and ancillary means, together with any others that could be used in the future, makes it necessary for a set of supplementary instructions to be established with the aim of facilitating and unifying, wherever possible, all that concerned with the design, use, assembly, operation and dismantling of said ancillary elements for usage thereof in the construction of road bridges.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

In the construction of road bridges, it is customary to use ancillary structures and elements as a means to facilitate and finalise the construction process, and so that the construction may be carried out, both from a technical and an economic point of view, in the most efficient way possible. Furthermore, construction techniques are subject to continuous evolution and updating, incorporating new technological advances with a view to improving construction processes. The design and construction of specific ancillary elements may be required for their application. This draft aims to continually improve the safety in works.

10. Reference Documents - Basic Texts

Law No 25/1988 and Royal Decree No 1812/1994 have been submitted to the Commission on 7 and 16 April 1999 respectively, for the purpose of processing IC Standards 3.1 and 8.1 (regulations notified under numbers 99/241/E and 99/242/E). Royal Decree No 597 of 16 April 1999 was submitted to the Commission on 31 July 2002, for the purpose of processing IC Standard 6.3 (regulation notified under number 2002/368/E).
