5. Title

Regulation appended to the order of 23 November 1987 concerning the safety of vessels. Division 236: patrol, recovery and rescue launches.

6. Products Concerned

The present division concerns general-cargo vessels with a gross tonnage of less than 500, built from 1 January 1995, where these are assigned mainly to tasks relating to public recovery, patrol or rescue services.

The following are included in these categories of vessels:

- vessels for recovery and patrol at sea or in port (maritime affairs, customs, harbour masters' offices, pilotage, inshore pilotage),
- rescue vessels (National Society for Rescue at Sea),
- civil protection vessels (fire service and local coastal authorities).

8. Main Content

The present division lays down the minimum safety requirements which must be met by general-cargo vessels with a gross tonnage of less than 500, constructed from 1 January 1995, where these are assigned mainly to tasks relating to public recovery, patrol or rescue services, and by their equipment.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The present division specifies the conditions of application, to the ships in question, of division 222 (1), some requirements of which are not appropriate to these vessels in view of the specialised nature of their use and the constraints arising therefrom.
