8. Main Content

The decree implements the provisions of Royal Decree 836/2012 of 25 May 2012 defining the technical characteristics, medical equipment and staffing of road ambulances, in these matters.

The technical characteristics and medical equipment are adapted from the provisions of standard UNE-EN 1789:2007+A2:2015, which replaced standard UNE-EN 1789:2007 + A1: 2010, referenced in the aforementioned Royal Decree 836/2012 of 25 May 2012, whose fifth additional provision provided for this replacement.

Similarly, it sets out the minimum staffing requirements for performance of medical transport and takes into account the sixth additional provision of the aforementioned Royal Decree pertaining to training requirements for volunteer staff from charities performing medical transport.

Similarly, the provisions on the technical medical certification system in Chapter IV of Order PRE/1435/2013 of 23 July 2013 implementing the Spanish Law on Land Transport ['Ley de Ordenación de los Transportes Terrestres'] with regard to medical transport by ambulance.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

Regulation of medical transport by land in the Autonomous Community of the Principality of Asturias was essentially provided by the Regulation on Medical Transport ['Reglamento del Transporte Sanitario'] in the Principality of Asturias, adopted by Decree 73/1997 of 13 November 1997. This Regulation was harmonised with the basic state standards in force at the time of its adoption.

Subsequently, the Government of Spain adopted Royal Decree 836/2012 with the status of a basic standard, which is binding on all Public Administrations in Spain. The new Decree is intended to amend the provisions of the aforementioned Royal Decree replacing the Order of 1997, in the Principality of Asturias, as it is no longer in accordance with said basic standard. It also aims to apply updates based on Order PRE/1435/2013, which lacks the status of a basic standard, but is applicable to medical transport passing through the territory of more than one autonomous community.
