8. Main Content

The Gambling Act 2005 ("the 2005 Act") gives the Gambling Commission ("the Commission"), as part of its statutory role, the power to attach conditions to operating licences about equipment used in connection with gambling activities (section 85). In addition, the Commission has the power to set technical standards for remote gambling systems (including software) (section 89). These Technical Requirements will regulate bingo and casino equipment in two different situations: (a) equipment that is used on premises in Great Britain to provide casino games and bingo games to the public and (b) equipment used to provide such games in gambling premises by means of a remote communication system, where the provider is regulated by the Act. These Requirements cover a variety of equipment including a "live" roulette wheel and bingo tickets. They do not cover gaming machines. The Technical Requirements contain detailed, non-discriminatory specifications for:

- Game requirements (including information display);
- Random number generation;
- Electronic device and server based system requirements;
- Specific error conditions and alert requirements; and
- Wireless network systems.

The Requirements vary according to whether they apply to bingo or casino equipment.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The Technical Requirements are needed to ensure that the provision of games of bingo and casino in Great Britain meet the 2005 Act's licensing objectives: to keep gambling crime-free, ensure gambling is fair and open and prevent harm from gambling. The Technical Requirements ensure that:

- equipment used to provide these games deliver outcomes that are determined fairly;
- the customer is given sufficient information to make choices about gambling;
- information can be retrieved from the machine to check compliance or handle customer complaints and disputes; and
- the customer has the ability to control their own spending on bingo or casino games.

The Requirements draw upon existing international regulatory and industry best practice. The Requirements permit equivalence between different types of technology and do not specify proprietary products or technologies. Testing regimes for these Requirements will permit equivalent international standards (ISO).
