9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The Water Environment(Oil Storage)(Scotland) Regulations 2006 were previously notified under the Technical Standards Directive in 2005. Notification Number 2005/0559/UK -S50E

Water pollution from oil storage facilities is one of the many diffuse pollution pressures on our water environment. These Regulations aim to reduce and prevent water pollution from inadequate and unsafe oil storage facilities that are above ground or in buildings. Key requirements will be for the storage container to be fit for purpose and to have a secondary containment system. This is normally a bund or a drip tray, designed to contain any contents escaping from the storage container. This measure contributes towards the delivery of the Water Framework Directive objectives for both surface waters and groundwater.
