8. Main Content

The SSAFO Regulations were introduced with the aim of reducing the high number of water pollution incidents in the agricultural sector. The Regulations establish containment and construction standards for silage-making and storage, slurry storage systems and agricultural fuel oil stores.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

These Regulations were originally made in 1991 (and amended in 1997), but we have become aware that they were not notified under Directive 98/34/EC at the time. We are therefore proposing to re-make the Regulations to ensure they are fully enforceable. This is important as the Nitrate Pollution Prevention Regulations 2008 (the "Nitrates Regulations") include provisions relating to slurry storage and rely on the technical provisions of the SSAFO Regulations to ensure that storage is appropriate and soundly constructed.
