8. Main Content

a) the draft regulations amend both the weighing equipment (non-automatic weighing machines) regulations 1988, and the non-automatic weighing instruments (eec requirements) regulations 1992. the amendment will permit all instruments to be used for weighing below the minimum capacity except in the case of instruments used for weighing gold, silver or other precious metals, precious stones or pearls, or for transactions in drugs or other pharmaceutical products.

for the 1992 regulations amendment is also made to include for the possibility of making amendments or variations to the designations of approved bodies (notified bodies) and to provide for the auditing of notified bodies as required by annex v of council directive 90/384/eec on non -automatic weighing instruments.

for the 1988 regulations additional provisions will be added in relation to machines imported into gb from another member state or an eea state.

b) the united kingdom would like to be informed by other member states of their own standards or regulations offering an equivalent level of safety and security.
