5. Title

The bovine offal (prohibition) (amendment) regulations 1995

6. Products Concerned

Specified bovine offals ie the brain, spinal cord, thymus, tonsils, spleen and intestine of cattle over six months of age that have died or been slaughtered in the united kingdom the thymus and intestines of calves between two and six months that have died or been slaughtered in the United Kingdom and the thymus and intestines of calves under two months that have been slaughtered in the United Kingdom.

7. Notification Under Another Act

8. Main Content

The regulations would require all specified bovine offal produced in slaughterhouses or elsewhere to be stained with a distinctive dye, patent blue v. the opportunity of these amending regulations is taken also to make the necessary amendments to transfer powers of enforcement from local authorities to a central government agency, the meat hygien service, from 1 april 1995. Recognition of equivalent standards and testing is not provided for in the notified draft as it is not applicable in this case.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The requirement for the use of a distinctive stain for specified bovine offal as part of the bse measures will make it that much easier for such material to be distinguished from all other animal by-products from the slaughterhouse, or wherever else specified bovine offal is produced, and throughout its disposal chain.
