8. Main Content

The Draft Royal Decree lays down the quality regulations for candies, chewing gum, confits and confectionaries, without prejudice to the sanitary regulations and other specific rules that apply to the production and marketing of said products. The Draft defines the products and the different types of each product as well as the ingredients, name and conditions of sale, as well as labelling regulations.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

Spanish regulations relating to confectionary products are found in Decree 2484/1967, approving the text of the Spanish Food Code. Said regulations have been subject to various amendments which make their unification appropriate.

Meanwhile, current consumer trends, leaning towards the purchase of products that adhere to scientific nutritional recommendations, advise amendments to current definitions to allow for the production of products whose composition can be reformulated, allowing the industry to make changes to composition, such as the elimination of sugars, and the diversification of the products.
