8. Main Content

The draft sets out the characteristics of ceramic tiles, the methods used to test them and the acceptance procedure governing their use in construction works.

Reference is also made to directive 89/106/EEC and to the replacement of the minimum documentation accompanying such products with the CE mark where applicable.

The Spanish authorities are aware that in cases where harmonised European standards exist these will replace the equivalent standards referred to in the text, and will adopt the requisite measures to this effect.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

The draft technical regulation is intended to update the general specifications on the acceptance of ceramic tiles in construction works (RL-86), which are twelve years old.
