8. Main Content

Draft technical regulations "RC-96" aim to establish the technical specifications and the supply and identification conditions which cements must satisfy for acceptance, both in construction works and ready-mixed concrete manufacturing plants and in factories for construction products whose composition includes cement, and, when so required, sampling procedures and test methods to verify fulfilment of such specifications.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

Since approval of the "RC-93" instructions currently in force, the European Standardization Committee (CEN) has approved a collection of European standards relating to cement, and the Spanish standards body (AENOR) has adopted these. This collection of EN-196 (tests) and ENV-197 (technical specifications, equivalent to UNE series eighty thousand three hundred) series standards is the primary motivating factor for the edition of these new "RC-96" instructions.
