8. Main Content

Rules intended to assure the protection of workers in coal mines against the risk of dust catching fire and exploding. Essentially, the amendment has to do with the reinforcement, on the one hand, of the neutralisation of the dust, and on the other hand, of the requirements with regard to the installation of barriers, while at the same time stipulating recourse to a new type of barrier called 'unlatched'.

9. Brief Statement of Grounds

Improvement of prevention of the risk of collective accident arising through the explosion of coal dust.
